

JUNE 4-7
2019
9 am - 4 pm

Maker Boot Camp is a four-day, immersive experience that will transform your maker skills whether you are a novice, developing maker, or just enjoy tinkering with things.

Maker Boot Camp is designed for teachers, public librarians, and museum professionals.

Maker Boot Camp includes the following:

- ▶ Personal, hands-on tinkering experiences through process-focused workshops, designed to give both practical and theoretical insight into different forms of making
- ▶ Roundtable discussions to reflect upon your tinkering experiences and unpack how tinkering is a valuable learning process
- ▶ Networking and skill swapping with makers from a wide range of educational settings
- ▶ Take home materials and resources in addition to 28 hours of ADE professional development credits (optional)
- ▶ Light breakfast and lunch will be provided each day.

PRICING

$1,000 per participant

General fee

$850 per participant

If 2 or more participants from the same institution register together

$750 per participant

Staff from Amazeum
Making Spaces Schools

"The biggest take away for me is not having to have a finished project. The idea that the creative process itself is the goal. This has impacted my teaching not only in my expectations for students, but in how I help them see their assignments."

"It has completely changed the way I would have taught... Now I let them explore and come to conclusions on their own."

"It was so good I don't think any other PD will measure up."

For registration and more information, contact Mindy Porter at 479.696.9280 or mporter@amazeum.org, or visit amazeum.org/educators/educators-2/tinkering-and-making.